Wednesday, October 6th
1926

Sale will positively begin at 12:00 o'clock sharp

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I respectfully direct attention to my forthcoming public offering of Scotch Shorthorns both Polled and Horned and feel confident that lovers of good cattle of the popular Shorthorn colors and breeding will be pleased with the cattle I am offering. This is a strong collection of many of the popular present day families of Shorthorn cattle. You will find them right out of the pasture in their every day clothes.

It is with reluctance that I offer this grand collection of young cattle but as I can no longer give them my personal attention I feel that I must disperse them. I consider this a much better time to start a herd of Shorthorns than to disperse one.

PERCHERONS.

The Percherons are of good size and excellent quality, having conformation, good eyes and feet and sound in every way. Some of them are closely related to prize winners and good enough to win in the shows, and are good producers, mostly being bred upon the farm.

Very respectfully,

ROMEYN B. AYRES.

A MOST IMPORTANT SALE.

The writer derives no small amount of pleasure in recommending this most excellent offering of Shorthorns, both horned and polled, and the most excellent consignment of Percherons. The fact of the matter is, people must see these good Shorthorns and Percherons to fully appreciate their worth. The Shorthorns are typical representatives of the breed, conforming to modern individual standards, and possessing as much good blood as can be found in any collection. Examine their pedigrees, and note the splendid tribes, the splendid dependable sorts that always have been in careful hands, and that are esteemed because of their established worth. Individually, and collectively this herd of Shorthorns is one of the good herds of the country. In type, and conformation they are of one standard, they show the results of constructive breeding, and as seed stock for old and new herds, there is nothing to surpass them. The writer has all the faith in the world in such cattle as these. He knows that under average, everyday conditions they will prove money-makers. Every good farm ought to be stocked with Shorthorns like these are. Arrange to see these good cattle sell. It certainly will pay you to be there.

The Percheron stud is of unusual excellence. There are mares listed that will do credit to any collection. They have pedigrees full of prize-winning blood. It is a clean cut consignment, a fine lot of mares of real Percheron type, and quality. The writer has known this herd for many years. It is dispersed today because a change in business plans on the part of Mr. Ayres make the dispersion necessary. Don't fail to be at the sale if interested in good Shorthorns, and Percherons.

—Francis T. Martin of The Breeder's Gazette.
